Sending Them All Back Would be the Best Option

Context: In response to Trump's rally chant in North Carolina on 7/17/2019 (Crowd chanted "Send her back" with reference to Ilhan Omar).

Any politician who wholesale seriously promised to deport non-whites would win in the biggest landslide ever. Americans are sick to death of diversity. They want out, even if they don't say it in so many words. Any president who carried something like that out would be hailed the hero of the US by historians and people would scream for him to remain president forever. Yet no one is willing to take popular positions. Trump has abandoned his base. We need a president who would say even more avaunt-garde things than Trump. "Send Her Back" isn't a statement of democrat hatred, it's about race at rock bottom and only racially blind conservatives will deny it.

But it must go beyond just illegals or revoking work visas and green cards, or deporting DACA "kids". Taking away citizenship retroactively for people who hate us is key. And that's along racial lines unfortunately. Sadly, it also involves creating a new country for black Americans who can govern themselves sovereignly. They feel themselves being governed by a foreign power: and they're right. Yet we err on the side of human goodness to think we will ever get along. The time has come to stop the foreplay and make big boy decisions. A peaceful separation is in order to stop the maddening self-annihilation of whites. The mainstream is no longer interested in the status quo, they want a complete getting rid of whites. They want you gone. But the messy transition from good diversity to bad separation will be a violent one. Hopes are to avoid that as much as possible. And this is how the libertarian mindset which is seemly a dominant theme among whites without a culture, is unnatural and impossible in implementation.

All countries have been created through some sort of aggression, mostly unjust. There is no way of avoiding it as mobs are uncontrollable. Yet the elites are the ones who fan the flames of coups, revolutions and takeovers (even the soft ones). The myth of grassroots activism by thousands is just that: Missing the bigger picture. It's an illusion that keeps on giving because you see the group but never the puppet master. People who understand history and will advocate for whites need to be those puppet masters.

Change hearts and minds to see that Walmart, Netflix and Doritos is not a culture. It's moral decadence and intellectual rot of the highest order. Breaking the current paradigm will require a spiritual awakening. The eugenics practiced by whites in the form of sexual energies being channeled into selfish ends need to be replaced by the nuclear family maritally understood. Those that put this into action will produce the next generation of leaders.

Hopefully these will take us to a post-American epoch that will utterly reject not just the dogmas of liberal post-modernism, but also the rational humanism of the enlightenment secularists. One that will see the common good as the state's primary responsibility to protect and the family as the most basic unit of society. That will reject crony consumer capitalism, and socialist central planning. Subsidiarity will reign supreme.

The Roman Church will be reestablished as the State religion and will enforce morals with the sweet yoke of Jesus Christ. And then, as the popes predicted, and only then, will true peace come about. And who knows what this'll look like. However, Antichrist will come first, and the Jews will usher him in, perhaps only to reject him and convert? It's an interesting possibility. And the Novus Ordo house of horrors will be crushed by a new Pontiff who will condemn the modernist takeover?

Obviously, I'm not predicting specifics, nor do I claim to have intimate or even broad knowledge of how the end times will pan out. The world takes its wildly unpredictable course with no regard for speculation by tiny humans. We know by Faith, that God will triumph in the end, and wheat will be separated from the chaff.
